I oppose London Hydro's proposed 2027 rate increase. It is another unavoidable increase being placed on households that are already dealing with rapidly rising costs for groceries, housing, insurance, transportation, and other necessities.

For working families in London living pay-cheque to pay-cheque, these seemingly small increases add up quickly. The question should not simply be whether a household can absorb another $6, but how many additional increases they are expected to absorb before their budgets become unsustainable.

I urge the OEB to carefully consider the impact this increase will have on ordinary London households and whether the additional burden on customers is truly necessary.
