With regards to the results of the class action under proceeding file EB-2010-0295, I would like to express to the Ontario Energy Board that I am firmly against allowing the defendant class members (Ontario's electric companies) to recover damages incurred from this suit through its ratepayers. I believe that it is unfair to pass the damages down to ratepayers that are already suffering from significant energy cost increases, as well as tax additions on those energy costs. I do not believe that it is right to unfairly charge customers late penalty fees, and then when caught and penalized for doing so, pass that penalty back onto the same customers that might have been unfairly charged in the first place.

Regards,

John-Paul Delseny
