SUGGESTED ISSUES LIST

1. Has THESL used the correct analytical framework to determine whether there is competition in the attachment of wireless telecommunications equipment to its poles sufficient to protect the public interest?
2. If so, has THESL correctly applied that analytical framework?
3. What is the public interest for purposes of this application?
4. Are there any adverse effects from forbearance on THESL's ratepayers?
5. What account should be used to record the costs and revenues for wireless attachments pending a determination in a future rates case as to how revenue should be allocated?
