We are cottage owners and use our cottage on weekends and maybe a week or two when we are on holidays. During the winter months we completely shut down the main hydro into the cottage as no one is there. We pay a ridiculous amount of to deliver hydro to a building that is not getting anything. I don't think any increase should be warranted as I think we pay to much already. Or consideration should be given to seasonal cottage owners. Bell used to give us options of shutting down service for a period of time so why can't hydro? It should be considered. Our whole cottage association would back this up.
