Producing oil by fracking has enormous environmental impacts. Building and maintaining a pipeline across multiple jurisdictions to deliver that oil adds further risk, further costs, further impact on climate change. I implore you to look seriously at the short, medium, and long term environmental impacts as you consider this project.

Climate change is real, urgent, and must be considered as you evaluate this project.

Your time and effort would be far better spent helping individuals, municipalities and companies develop and invest in eco-friendly jobs and technologies.
