I object to any increase in output charges now and in the future as outlined in the application. OPG should eventually be decommissioned and only hydro electricity, wind and solar and other green sources should be used. Therefore, getting money from increased charges is futile. If OPG feels the need for more money, they should get it from internal sources such as reducing the salary and benefits of the Directors and CEO etc. This pandemic has been particularly financially difficult for families who have to remain at home to work or for childcare with closed schools. Many families have lost income and/or are consuming more electricity at home. Recently kwh costs have been capped at 8.5 cents, the lowest in decades. This is not the time for the OEB to increase costs to consumers by allowing OPG to increase output charges.
