The Ontario Energy Board

As seasonal residents, we pay a huge sum for the delivery charge on our hydro bill. Despite using very little hydro in the summer, and none at all in the winter, we pay a significant sum of money to have this convenience. Your calculations estimate consuming 1000kWh, but for someone using significantly less, how will our bill change. If the "seasonal" rate is changing, what is happening to the delivery charge?

We have plans to winterize the cottage , but this could greatly impact our retirement plans.

Thank you,

Suzanne and Jordan White
