This new rate system is hardly fair. If I understand the new formula, the hydro rate for seasonal customers in low density areas that consume a very low amount of electricity will be penalized by doubling their rates. Hydro one has been trying to get customers to consume less energy with all kinds of incentives over the past few years and now those that have been making these efforts are being penalized. I also find that penalizing customers in low density areas (in which a lot of seasonal residences are located) is not fair either.
