Despite not meeting Hydro One criteria for a permanent resident, I non the less use hydro on a year long basis at this address. It is hard to understand why I have to pay more for a service I continually use just because of Hydro One's definition. Nothing will change, the power lines won't change, the numerous power outages won't change (which costs me a fortune every time it goes out), the inefficiencies at Hydro One won't change, just my bill. If I use hydro year round, which I do, it should not matter if I'm at this location, one day, one week, one year , by my definition I am a permanent consumer of electricity. My bill is high enough as it is, now they want more. There is only so much to go around. A suggestion for the bureaucrats at Hydro One is to get out of your comfy chairs and drive costs down through efficiency improvements, just like private industry has to do.
