I strongly oppose to this application as inflation is going up, the more visible change with the prices going up is in Toronto and it is one of the most expensive place to live already without the inflation. I am working full time and looking for another job at the moment in order to just barely get by. Enbridge gas is already really high I'm barely at home, my bill for enbridge right now is 80 dollars already per month and I had been very careful with the usage and no one is at home most of the time. Canada winter is long and freezing and if enbridge gas goes up when it's winter that people need it the most, along with the inflation of all other necessities currently (food, commute, etc.) I just won't be able to afford to live anymore. There's just no way, either freeze to death or starve to death.
