I do not think they should be raising the rates again. People like myself can barely afford to pay all the bills now. Many people are living below poverty and the big companies like enbridge, hydro and water keep raising the rates, but living wage seems to be a dream for most. These big companies are making money at the previous rates, why can't they just leave it alone, let the little people be able to keep the roof over their heads and be able to buy food, which has gone up to insane prices. This will not be fair again to the average person struggling to live
