I am a low income, single income person over 60 years old and I don't feel there should be any more increases in the price of gas at this time. First, Enbridge just had a price increase. Second, during this inflationary period, it is most difficult to just be able to afford the basics in life and for those like myself who are low income and a senior single homemaker, it is very very difficult to just get by. We all need heat for the furnace and hot water in order to live and I already have my heat turned down as low as it can go in the house. I wear long underwear all of the time to stay warm. I don't feel that another price increase is warranted or fair to those of us who are low income. As a low income senior person, we do not receive any assistance for our gas heating bills similar to what is currently available for hydro costs, so there are no programs for low income older people to decrease the cost for those who are struggling to survive. I ask that this request for higher costs for gas be declined. Thank you.
