Please refer to page 18 of the following document which outlines how much money Enbridge is earning year over year. If you look at Adjusted EBITDA, they are up 15% in Q3 2022 and 13% up YoY 2022. How can they ask for more money when they are ALREADY making so much more money while their customers are struggling to make ends meet? This is capitalistic greed at its very worst.

I would highly recommend you shut their ask down and ask them what is the true reason behind their ask - they probably will not say it but it is just to line their pockets. Raising prices during a recession while customers can barely afford a roof over their head and put food on the table? How can you make such a tone deaf move?
