Is a rate increase really necessary? Just getting to this form took more effort than most busy families would have time to exert. It seems that the entire process is 'transparent' and allows regular customers of Enbridge to 'have their say.' However it all feels very performatory. Canadians are experiencing an unprecedented strain on expenses. Perhaps massive corporate entities like Enbridge should just adjust their shareholders expectations and give real hard working customers a break as we most likely head into a recession.
