Enclosed is my latest Westario Power bill. As you examine it, you will see my total electricity charges are $35.37. My delivery charges were $27.79. If you add the requested increase of $7.43 to my current delivery charges, then the total is $35.22. Since I did not consume 1000 kW, as this application is based upon, I calculated my delivery charges using Westario's 21.5%, this comes out to $33.76. This makes my consumption and delivery charges equal. I feel this is far too excessive for a one year increase. I have never seen wages increase like this.

My suggestion is to spread this increase over two separate years, starting May 1, 2009 and May 1, 2010.

People living on pensions and other fixed incomes will encounter financial difficulties with increases of 21.5%.

I realize the costs of doing business are continually rising; however the residential power consumer and their ability to pay must also be taken into consideration here.

Yours truly,

Gordon Moore
