Dear Ms. Marconi:

Re: EB-2022-0325 – Generic Hearing on Uniform Transmission Rates (UTR) – Phase 2.

Glencore Canada Corporation (GCC) Intent to File Evidence.

With apologies to the OEB for the delay in filing this letter of intention, we have now confirmed instructions from our client, GCC, to seek to file evidence in this matter. GCC is not seeking cost recovery in this matter, the proposed evidence would be brief and GCC fact specific, and as the OEB has not yet issued directions on the filing of evidence we hope that this late filing does not cause any inconvenience to the Board, and are confident that it will not cause any prejudice or inconvenience to any other party.

As set out in GCC's Intervention Form submission, GCC has experience with, and an interest in, charges caused by planned transmission outages (issue 4 on the Board's list of issues for this matter). When an outage is required for GCC's primary transmission connection for its Sudbury integrated nickel mining and processing operation, GCC's load is temporarily transferred to Hydro One Distribution's Larchwood Transmission Station. In these events, GCC incurs peak demand driven charges that are higher than would be charged if the load transfer had not been required. GCC intends to file evidence briefly describing these circumstances and the associated incremental charges thereby incurred.

The proposed evidence will describe the cost impact of temporary load transfers on a specific transmission connected customer whose alternate point of connection is through a distribution system. This is a real world example of the precise circumstances under consideration in this proceeding. This should be of assistance to the OEB and the other parties in this proceeding.

Yours truly,

Ian A. Mondrow
