LETTER OF COMMENT

Comments:

I'd like to express my strong opposition to any further increases that enbridge would like to impose. Since 2020, the cost of heating our homes-especially for those relying on natural gas- has risen sharply. Many households have experienced increases of 50-70% in their heating bills over the past few years, driven by higher rates and a significant rise in the federal carbon charge. This increase has been far greater than wage growth or cost of living adjustments for most Ontarians. For many, these higher costs are not a matter of inconvenience, but of necessity and survival. Any added increases will make it harder for people to keep up with bills that are already unaffordable. The OEB has a mandate to protect the interests of consumers while ensuring reliable energy delivery. Approving another increase at this time would only deepen the financial burden on residents, push more Ontarians toward energy poverty and erode public confidence in our regulatory system. Your consideration is greatly appreciated.
