LETTER OF COMMENT

Comments:

Raising the rates when people are barely surviving is absolutely absurd to me. We may more than enough for our gas. When our delivery fees are more or equal to our use I don't think it's fair to increase the rates. People will soon not be able to keep their families warm. This is not about the company making an abundance of overhead. We should be focusing on the clientele being able to afford services. I for one want to be able to keep my family warm in winter months and not worry about affording to do so. I do not support any increases as this will impact all of us financially and WILL make more families have to decide between food or a gas bill. So sad if you ask me. So many already have to decide between different bills being paid, let's not have to include one more.
