LETTER OF COMMENT

Comments:

I strongly oppose further rate increases in light of the current exorbitant costs of living. There seems to be no real reason why this company needs to charge more money given they already enjoy significant profit in the billions of dollars. If they need more funds they can scrape into their revenue to make it happen. There is no reason why the consumer should get further pinched so another company can claim record profits while begging the government for the ability to charge even more in the same breath. People over profit, not the other way around. Our government should work for the people as intended and block this attempt to charge consumers more.
