Good morning. I'm disappointed, yet not surprised, to see this proposed rate increase. While on paper, it may seem small, we're at the precipice of life becoming too expensive to maintain for the average person/family. Thanks to oligarchic practices, groceries are through the roof, Niagara has some of the highest water bills for residents, the oil companies have gas at increasingly unrealistic prices...is this REALLY the time to be raising the rates?? Ontario has an excess of power, so what is the justification to be raising rates when we are already struggling on a day to day basis? We don't get paid enough to continue to live in this province, or most of the country, and Niagara Power thinks this is good timing to gouge us for more money?? At some point, we're going to hit a wall. Stop the corporate greed for one second and think about the workers who are struggling every day.
